ALLCRAFT MEDIA

Welcome

Continuing our exciting transformation, we're absolutely thrilled to unveil our new name:

Yarnwise

Yarnwise seemed a natural choice and we hope you're as happy with it as we are! While we're introducing you to Yarnwise, you'll enjoy two months of a double cover, along with exciting changes to the page layouts. We're keen to hear your feedback, so please do email us your comments.

For this issue, there's a slightly nautical flavour to our patterns and features. Our attractive cover garment, designed by Sian Brown, knits fresh stripes with a clever crochet border to bring a glowing, seaside, Spring feel.

We look into the history of the Gansey on page 20 and this month's Sheep of the Month is the wonderful Wensleydale, the yarn of which is perfect for knitting ganseys! Debbie Newton shares her Seaming Seminar from her newly-released book on page 46 and shares traditional and creative ways to join your knitted pieces.

Camilla Hair talks to spinner and local fibre treasurer Sara Dootson-Graube on page 76, while Amy Twigger Holroyd shares her successful design stories on page 56.

In line with our nautical theme, we have the fun 'Drop Anchors' hat on 66 and also a quick-to-make shawl on page 94, which offers the added option of charted patches and different edging designs.

Happy knitting all, enjoy!

ROUND, MUST-HAVES!

↗ Queen of Hearts Woolly Sheep MARY KILVERT

These sheep are made using wool from English Dorset Sheep and each one comes with its own unique, hand-knitted jumper, a gift box and a certificate of authenticity. Measuring approximately 12cm long by 8cm high, these woolly wonders make unique gifts. To see Mary Kilvert's Woolly Sheep range, go to www.marykilvert.com, where they are priced at £36.

↗ Cotton Bags BAA RAM EWE

Baa Ram Ewe have created these handy cotton bags which are ideal for storing your latest knitting project, or the many odds and ends we knitters seem to collect! The cotton bags are £2 each but are free when you spend over £40 on Baa Ram Ewe products, and these can be purchased with free delivery online at www.baaramewe.co.uk

↘ Polka - Berry Blast FIDDLE KNITS

Knit designer, Erica Jackofsky offers a fabulous range of unique hand dyed yarns. With 400 yards to the skein, this fabulous 2-ply yarn is perfect for Spring/Summer projects. 100% Superwash Merino and available worldwide, from approximately £11.50. Visit www.fiddleknits.com for more info!

Handspun Greens and Sparkles Yarn

ETSY

This is a 2 ply textured handspun yarn piled with shetland wool. It consists of shetland, merino, bamboo and sparkle. 51 metres and 75 grams, head to www.etsy.com/shop/thecraftyhare to order this gorgeously handspun yarn for £18

Lace Blocking Set

HULU CRAFTS

These work by threading wires through the centre and the edge loops of the piece and use just a few pins to secure the wires to the blocking board at the right size. Each kit contains wires, t-pins and a measuring stick, plus instructions on how to use them. There are two versions of the kits: a standard lace blocking kit for £19.95 and a deluxe lace blocking kit that contains more wires and pins at £29.95. Be sure to visit www.hulucrafts.co.uk to order yours.

Knitted Wire Bracelet

FOLKSY

Kirsty Foote has knitted this gorgeous bracelet from wire and has used beads to add a touch of elegance. To take a look at Kirsty's collection, head to www.folksy.com/shops/shineybubble or drop into the Gloucestershire Arts and Craft Centre, where you can purchase this bracelet at only £9.

Drift Yarn

ETSY

Drift is a kid mohair/nylon lace weight yarn from Yarnscape. This light and fluffy yarn has a halo, making it ideal for ethereal lace creations. Drift knits up at the same tension as a certain other kid mohair lace yarn – but at 450m per 50g skein, you get twice as much! Alison at Yarnscape specialises in repeatable colours that won't overwhelm a delicate lace pattern, and almost always dyes up enough skeins for a sizeable project at the same time. If you don't see what you want in her shop – just ask! Drift knits up on 3.5–5mm needles for a tension of 18–25 stitches to 10 cm in stocking stitch. It's £8 per skein. Head to www.etsy.com/shop/yarnscape to buy yours today.

Colourful Sheep Cushion

MARY KILVERT

Handmade from cotton fabric, this attractive cushion measures approximately 30cm x 25cm and comes with a cherry-red or sage green polka-dot backing. The small version costs £20, but this fun and colourful cushion is also available in a larger size which measures approx. 42cm x 42cm. Handmade using beautiful linen and boasting a neutral plain linen back, this gorgeous item can be yours for £40 at www.marykilvert.com

THIS MONTH'S ESSENTIAL READS

SEASCAPES

MARTIN STOREY • £8.50

www.knitrowan.com

Martin Storey has teamed with Rowan and put together 16 hand knit designs for men and women inspired by the coast and its rugged landscape. With a focus on fresh colours, interesting textures and simple techniques, this collection is ideal for Spring and Summer knits. The collection has been created using Creative Linen, Summer Tweed and Savannah.

THE ULTIMATE BOOK OF BABY KNITS

DEBBIE BLISS • £16.99

www.quadrille.co.uk

Debbie Bliss has compiled another 50 of her favourite patterns for babies and toddlers. These practical yet modern, hand-knitted designs are suitable for absolute beginners, knitting basics are explained with easy-to-follow diagrams and there are explanations of the basic stitch types such as rib and moss. The book also shows how to produce cable effect and intarsia work. Each pattern is clearly presented with charts where necessary and every design is accompanied by beautiful photography.

IN THE LOOP: KNITTING NOW

www.blackdogonline.com

Jessica Hemmings has invited contributors to this book to demystify current views on knitting and show how it has now become more than just a hobby. Each contribution is refreshingly different: Amy Twigger Holroyd's contribution to this compilation is discussing her Keep & Share project. Each section of this thoroughly enjoyable read details and illustrates just how diverse knitting can be. For more information about Amy Twigger Holroyd, turn to page 54 to read our interview with the designer.

ALICE STARMORE • £14.99

www.store.anovabooks.com

Handknit designer Alice Starmore takes inspiration from the world's coastal seascapes in this popular reprint. The book features inspirational scenes from Scotland, England, Ireland, Norway, Faroe and Cape Cod. There are 20 versatile fisherman's sweater patterns with straightforward instructions and charts. The patterns are complemented by some gorgeous images, and knitting techniques, terminology and yarn information are also supplied. No wonder this is a book is still going strong today.

YARN REVIEW

Catherine Waterfield puts Tosh Sock to the test, from the Cat Paw Cardigan, (page 72)

YARN SPECIFICATIONS

Madelinetosh Sock

100% Superwash, Merino Wool
100g/361m/395yd

THE YARN

Madelinetosh is a lovely, high-twist sock yarn that provides great stitch definition. This means it can be used equally well for plain stocking stitch, cables, lace and texture stitches (such as moss stitch) where you want the stitches to really pop.

One of the best things about Madelinetosh is the mammoth array of colours it's available in. There's bound to be one that suits your project and you can really go wild when it comes to colour work! The strength of the colour does vary from lot to lot, so make sure you buy sufficient yarn for your project from one lot, or consider working two skeins of yarn in alternating rows to make sure they blend.

As well as being perfect for garments, lots of people use it to knit really gorgeous socks with. It doesn't contain any nylon, though, so you may want to knit it alongside a spool of nylon thread in the heel and toe to lengthen their life.

OUR DESIGNER SAID:

I love Madelinetosh for the range of colours and its gentle semi-solid colourways. Being a superwash yarn, it's great for hard-wearing items like socks and baby clothes – it's my go-to yarn for almost any project!

WASHING AND WEARING

The yarn is made with superwash merino, which means you can throw it in the machine without worrying about felting or shrinking – phew! It does tend to bleed when you first wash it, though, so take care to wash it on its own or with similar colours the first time. Furthermore, if you're going to attempt some colourwork, it may prove wise to wash the skeins before you knit with them, so that your whites don't later turn an unexpected shade of pink!

STAR RATING

Knitability ★★★★★

Value for Money ★★★★★

Cost: Available in the UK for £19.95 per skein, it's definitely a luxury yarn – but one worth every penny! One skein will make a pair of socks (with plenty left over) and a medium-sized cardigan like the one featured on page 72 can be made from approximately 3-4 skeins.

WHAT'S HAPPENING IN RIGHT NOW IN THE WORLD OF WOOL

SOW SEW

Merci is a charity working to promote sustainability throughout Greater Manchester. One of their current projects is the Sow Sew in which they have used a brownfield site in Manchester to grow flax, an organic and sustainable material. They are currently looking for more brownfield sites in Manchester, to make use of such redundant spaces. If you have an idea for using a portion of locally grown, organic and sustainable flax, then download an "Expression of Interest" form today. The best artefacts made from the flax will be considered for inclusion in a Manchester exhibition. For further information, head to www.merci.org.uk

INTRODUCE KNITTING TO CHILDREN THIS EASTER

With the holidays fast approaching, Pony has a wide range of exciting accessories to keep the little ones entertained this Easter. They are offering children's plastic knitting needles in various bright colours at £1.60 in a range of sizes, from 3.25mm, 4mm to 4.5mm (18cm long). French knitting bees are available in a range of four colours and these bees include pom pom makers! Idea for children who are being introduced to yarn crafts for the very first time. These knitting looms are priced at £5.35. Stockist details at crafts@stockistenquiries.co.uk or ring 01453 883581

NEW NAME, NEW LOOK!

We've been listening to your comments about what you want from your monthly knitting magazine, and this Spring, we'll be making changes and improvements to ensure that when it comes to knitting magazines, you're always getting the pick of the crop!

There will be a new look to reflect new content, content that brings you the patterns you want to knit and fascinating features especially tailored to you, and, most importantly, we're giving ourselves a brand new name! From Issue 50, Knit magazine officially becomes Yarnwise. Priced at a competitive £4.99, Yarnwise will be the newest, brightest and best knitting magazine on the market. Don't forget, ask for Yarnwise by name, or take out a subscription by filling out the coupon on page 70.

FOR THE RECORD

Ruth and Belinda of Knit Expo are creating a wall to record the thoughts of hand-knitters. They want to collect and curate hundreds of words and tiny bias blocks to feature as a touring artwork. After that, the artwork will be broken down, formed into knee blankets and then sent out into the community. More details at www.knitexpo.co.uk, click on events.

WOOL FOR THE WALL

Fibre craft shop Beaker Button is situated in Andover's Fairground Craft and Design Centre. The site is enclosed by a two-metre high, white chalk and plaster wall, which runs for 136 metres along the Weyhill Road. This wall has inspired a competition in which the aim is to cover this wall in cloth. You can knit, crochet or weave and each piece should measure 50cmx50cm. You can embellish with whatever you like but the base must be of yarn. Each entry costs £2 and the proceeds go to a local charity. For further details on the competition and prizes, be sure to visit www.beakerbutton.co.uk

The Fisherman's Friend

Ross Gilfillan looks at the warm and virtually waterproof gansey

In an old family album, is a photograph of me, aged 21. I'm hitchhiking by the M1 and I'm wearing – along with the hopeful smile of youth – a pair of jeans and a navy-blue sweater. Thirty five years later, my face is lined and my hair is grey – but the jumper looks as good as it did on the day I was given it, some six years before the photograph was taken.

I knew the sweater was called a Guernsey and I knew it was supposed to be water-repellant. I knew it originated in the Channel Islands, which was where my mother had bought it. But I knew nothing of the importance of this type of plain blue sweater and certainly not that one day, many years into a misty future, I would be writing for magazines which demanded that I knew jumpers such as this inside out, as it were.

I don't wear the jumper any more, now that this unshrinkable seaman's sweater appears to have done just that (I may be a little larger now) but I still have it and taking its tightly-knit sleeves in my hands, I can almost feel the history that's knit into this important staging post in the history of British knitwear (so important, that a Guernsey sweater was selected as one of the BBC's History of the World in 100 Objects). It's important because it's a prime example of a 'Gansey', variants of which have become integral parts of the cultures and even the economies of so many coastal communities in the British Isles.

The history of the gansey is fascinating, but it's a history that's incomplete and often open to dispute. It's thought by many that the word 'gansey' derives from 'Guernsey' (just as the word 'jersey' springs from the neighbouring island, which was a centre of worsted spinning). We know that this weatherproof fisherman's sweater has been knitted along the East Coast and up into Scotland and down into Cornwall since at least the early nineteenth century.

I spoke to Russ Stanland of gansey wool specialists Frangipani in Penzance, who explained how the gansey tradition became established in Cornwall. "It was all because of the herring fleet," Russ says. "The 'gutting girls' would follow the fleet, knitting ganseys for their fishermen when they weren't busy gutting the fish."

The knitting of ganseys was an important part of life in the fisherman's house and it was common to see women sitting in their doorways using the last of the light to press on with the making of a gansey for the man of the house – who would sometimes take a hand himself, the arts of knitting and net-making not being so very different (very possibly, they're actually related).

Ganseys are still used by fishermen today, their tight cuffs keeping out moisture and their heavy patterning providing warmth, but they're also popular with anyone in the market for a durable, element-beating piece of clothing – and that includes the Army, who, in 2006, sent 100 neutral-coloured Guernseys out to Iraq, each emblazoned with Desert Rats insignia.

Patterns for ganseys vary dramatically and range from the plain, no-nonsense sweater of the Channel Islands, which boasts a reversible design, square shape and side vents, to the intricately-designed ganseys of Scotland and the North Yorkshire Coast. Patterns from beyond the Channel Islands feature motifs appropriate for communities sustained by the sea – you'll find nets and ropes, herringbones, waves and even lightning bolts. Historically, mistakes were often knitted in too, but this is where the history of the gansey is sometimes contended.

While some have argued that patterns were used to tell one community from another (the neighbouring North Yorkshire fishing centres of Scarborough, Filey and Whitby, for examples, are indeed easily distinguishable by their quite different patterns), others have said that these patterns go further than identifying communities or parishes but are actually traceable to the families who knitted them. Another, more ghoulish reason is very often cited for the existence of these interesting errors and odd motifs. The legend has sprung up that these singularities of design were incorporated to help in the identification of drowned sailors.

Could this be true? The story is told from Whitby to Penzance and there may be something in it, though wouldn't a better aid to identification be the fisherman's name? But there are instances in which a positive identification of a drowned man has indeed been made because of the jumper he was wearing – it happened in the case of the grandfather of one of Frangipani's customers. Russ Stanland thinks that while the patterning has helped in such cases, it's unlikely to have decided the designs.

Just when the sweaters first appeared is a second bone of contention. There is no real evidence to suggest that the jumpers as we know them existed much before the turn of the 18th century. A humble sweater is unlikely to make much of a mark in the records and wool will rarely survive the ravages of time. It's recorded that ganseys were worn by sailors on HMS Victory at the Battle of Trafalgar in 1805 but the ganseys referred to here were probably not knit, but made from woollen cloth. The actual style of knitting is thought to have originated during the reign of Elizabeth I, and the knitting industry of the island of Guernsey dates back to the late 15th century but the Guernsey sweater itself seems to have appeared sometime in the early to mid nineteenth century.

These seamless, tubular garments – knit in the round on five or more small needles – were eminently practical items of clothing. The sweaters were reversible, meaning that areas receiving a lot of wear could be alternated and it was customary to reknit portions of the garment that had eventually succumbed to harsh treatment and the elements – and also to constant wear. A fisherman might wear his gansey all week, saving his Sunday best one – which might feature better patterning and even be in a colour other than blue – for special occasions.

A Gansey owed its weather-beating capabilities to the closeness of its knit – but also, sometimes, some the addition of a few drops of oil. Penzance's Frangipani specialises in strong, high quality Gansey yarn and Russ Stanland says that people will still add a little lanolin or even Johnson's Baby Oil in order to increase the sweater's water-repelling capabilities.

A good Gansey might survive for decades, and be passed on, father to son. These sweaters, whose durability and fitness for purpose have been proved by the passing of years, are timeless classics and it doesn't surprise me that they are now being considered as items of British national costume.

My own Guernsey is testament to the gansey's longevity – I only hope the time will come when I can again get into it!

Frangipani (run by 'Frangipani Jan' and Russ Stanland) stock 26 colours of 5-Ply guernsey wool. You'll find them at 15, Clarence St, Penzance, Cornwall TR18 2NU. (+44 (0)1736 366339)

Knitting & Crochet Guild Gansey Scheme

Early in the 1990s, the Knitting & Crochet Guild was given a quantity of 5ply wool. One of the key aims of the Guild is preservation and it was decided that, as fishermen's ganseys were an important item in the history of knitting, this wool should be used to knit as many of them as possible, using the various patterns from around the coast of Britain. In order to make the wool go as far as possible, the ganseys were made to fit a size 24inch chest. This size was big enough to adequately show the patterns and small enough that several of them could be used together for display purposes.

Rita Taylor organised the scheme and devised a basic pattern that could be adapted for the different stitches. A call was put out in SlipKnot, the Guilds' journal, for volunteers to knit them and they now have approximately two dozen mini-ganseys. The ganseys travel around the country to various shows and always attract lots of interest. They have also been on loan to Ganseyfest in Inverness, as part of their Seminar.

The Guild is are still a long way short of collecting every pattern and would love to hear from anyone who would like to join their band of gansey knitters or who might have some 5ply wool to donate to the scheme.

Lochinver

'Many of the original Scottish ganseys featured horizontal patterned bands that were worked on yokes and sleeve tops. I have played with this format in Lochinver by placing horizontal bands on the main body and interspersing them with stocking stitch on the sleeves. The yoke is worked in a small wave pattern, which contrasts well with the shoulder strap panels.

The neatly buttoned neckband of Lochinver echoes those of past ganseys, though here the finished look is contemporary and decidedly feminine'

Pattern starts Body

Back and front lower border flaps are worked separately first, then they are joined and body is worked in one piece to armhole.

Border flaps

With 33/4mm (US 5) needles, cast on 138[146,154] sts.

Working back and forth in rows, work
first 8 rows of lower border as follows—
P 1 row (RS); k 2 rows; p 2 rows; k 2 rows;
p 1 row.

(odd-numbered) rows and from left to right for WS (even-numbered) rows, set

Chart A row 1 (RS): Work 8 sts of row 1
of chart A as indicated; rep 4 patt sts
30[32,34] times; work last 10 sts of chart
as indicated.

Chart A row 2: Work first 10 sts of row 2
of chart A as indicated; rep 4 patt sts
30[32,34] times; work last 8 sts of chart
as indicated.

Cont in chart A patt as set, rep 4 patt

rows 5 times in all, then work chart rows
1 and 2 once more, thus working 22 chart A rows in total.

K 2 rows; p 2 rows, so ending with RS facing for next row.

Break off yarn and leave border flap sts on a spare needle.

Work a second identical border flap,
but do not break off yarn.

Join border flaps

With RS facing, p first st of second border flap; k across rem sts of this flap;
with RS of first border facing, p first st; k across rem sts of this flap. 276[292,308]
sts.

With RS still facing, join borders into a circle and work first rnd as follows—

Rnd 1: Place a st marker on RH needle to mark first st as beg of rnd and underarm seam st, *p1 (seam st);
p137[145,153]*; place a st marker on RH needle to mark next st for centre of rnd and underarm seam st, rep from * to * once more.

Working in rnds (RS always facing) and keeping markers in place on every rnd throughout, p 1 rnd more.

Next rnd: *P seam st; k137[145,153]; rep from * once more.

Chart B rnd 1: *P seam st; rep 4 patt sts of rnd 1 of chart B 34[36,38] times; work last st of chart as indicated; rep from * once more.

Cont to p seam sts and cont in chart B patt as set, rep 6 patt rnds 3 times in all, then work chart rnds 1 through 4 once more, thus working 22 chart B rnds in total.

Cont to p seam sts throughout, k 1 rnd; p 2 rnds; k 2 rnds; P 2 rnds; k 1 rnd. **

Set chart C patt as follows—

Chart C rnd 1 (RS): *P seam st; rep 8 patt sts of rnd 1 of chart C 17[18, 19] times; work last st of chart as indicated; rep from * once more.

Cont in chart C patt as set, rep 4 patt rnds 5 times in all, then work chart rnds 1 and 2 once more, thus working 22 chart C rnds in total.

Work 8 rnds as between chart B and C patts from  to **.

Set chart D patt as follows—

Chart D rnd 1: P seam st; rep 2 patt sts of rnd 1 of chart D 68[72,76] times; work last st of chart as indicated; rep from * once more.

Cont in chart D patt as set, rep 2 patt rnds 11 times in all, thus working 22 chart C rnds in total.

Work 8 rnds as between chart B and C patts from  to **.

Begin gussets

Beg gussets and set chart E patt as follows—

Chart E rnd 1: *M1; k seam st; m1; rep 8 patt sts of rnd 1 of chart E 17[18,19] times; work last st of chart as indicated; rep from * once more. (The seam st and inc sts form the gussets – there are now 3 sts in each gusset.)

Working all gusset sts in st st throughout, inc 1 st at each side of each gusset on every foll 3rd rnd until there are 21 sts in each gusset, AND AT THE SAME TIME work patt over back and front sts as follows—

Cont in chart E patt as set, rep 8 patt rnds 3 times in all, work chart rnd 1 once more, thus working 25 chart E rnds in total, then k 1 rnd, p 2 rnds (keeping gusset sts in st st). 316[332,348] sts.

Divide for yokes

Place first 21 sts of rnd (gusset) on a holder, leave next 137[145,153] sts (back yoke sts) on a spare needle, place next 21 sts (gusset) on a holder. 137[145,153] sts of front yoke rem.

Front Yoke

Beg with a WS row and working back and forth in rows, p 1 row, k 2 rows, p 2 rows, so ending with RS facing for next row.

Reading chart from right to left chart for RS (odd-numbered) rows and from left to right for WS (even-numbered) rows, set chart F patt as follows—

Chart F row 1 (RS): Rep 8 patt sts of row 1 of chart F 17[18,19] times; work last st of chart as indicated.

Chart F row 2: Work first st of row 2 of chart F as indicated; rep 8 patt sts

17[18, 19] times.

Cont in chart F patt as set, rep 6 patt rows until yoke measures 15.5[16.5,17.5] cm (61/4[61/2,7]in) from top of gussets, ending with RS facing for next row.

Shape front neck

Next row (RS): Keeping continuity of patt, work 62[65,68] sts in patt; place next 13[15,17] sts on a holder for front neck; turn, leaving rem sts on a spare needle.

Cast off 3 sts at beg of next row.

Work 1 row without shaping.

Cast off 2 sts at beg of next and foll alt row. 55[58,61] sts rem.

Dec 1 st at neck edge on every foll row 6 times.

Work 1 row without shaping.

Dec 1 st at neck edge on next and foll alt row, so ending with RS facing for next row. 47[50,53] sts rem.

Set chart G patt as follows—

Chart G row 1 (RS): Rep 8 patt sts of row 1 of chart G 5[6,6] times; work last 7[2,5] sts of chart as indicated.

Chart G row 2: Work first 7[2,5] sts of row 2 of chart G as indicated; rep 8 patt sts 5[6,6] times.

Cont in chart G patt as set until all 21 chart rows have been completed.

Place sts on a holder.

With RS facing, rejoin yarn to 62[65,68] sts of right side of neck and keeping continuity of chart F patt to shoulder strap, work 2 rows without shaping, then shape as left side of front neck from  to ***.

Dec 1 st at neck edge on next row. 48[51,54] sts rem.

Back yoke

With WS facing, rejoin yarn to 137[145, 153] sts of back yoke and beg with a WS row and working back and forth in rows, p 1 row, k 2 rows, p 2 rows, so ending with RS facing for next row.

Work in chart F patt as front yoke, rep 6 patt rows until there are same number of chart F patt rows as front yoke to beg of shoulder strap, ending with RS facing for next row.

Place first 47[50,53] sts on a spare needle, leave centre 43[45,47] sts on a holder for back neck, place rem 47[50,53] sts on a spare needle.

Sleeves

Before beg sleeves, graft back shoulder sts to front shoulder strap sts.

Begin Sleeve

With RS facing and 33/4mm (US 5) needles, k 21 sts from gusset holder; pick up and k 121[127,131] sts evenly around armhole edge to complete rnd. 142[148,152] sts.

Shape gusset

Place a st marker on RH needle to mark beg of rnd and working in rnds, beg shaping gusset as follows—

Next rnd: Ssk; k next 17 gusset sts; k2tog; p121[127,131].

Next rnd: K 19 gusset sts; p121[127,131]. K 1 rnd without shaping.

Chart E rnd 1: Ssk; k15; k2tog; work first 0[3,1] sts of rnd 1 of chart E as indicated; rep 8 patt sts 15[15,16] times; work last 1[4,2] sts of chart as indicated.

Cont in chart E patt as set over sleeve sts, rep 8 patt rnds twice in all, work chart rnds 1 through 6 once more, thus working 22 chart E rnds in total, AND AT THE SAME TIME working gusset sts in st st throughout, shape gussets by dec 1 st at each side of gusset on every foll 3rd rnd until 3 gusset sts in st st rem. 124[130, 134] sts.

Work 2 rnds in chart E patt as set without shaping.

Next rnd: Sl 1-k2tog-ssso; work in chart E patt to end of rnd.

//Next rnd:// P1 (seam st); k to end of rnd. Pl rnd.

Shape lower sleeve

Next rnd: P1 (seam st); k2tog; p to last 2 sts; ssk.

Cont to p seam st to cuff, k 2 rnds.

Dec 1 st at each side of seam st on next and every foll 3rd row AND AT THE SAME TIME cont to p seam st and work sleeve

sts in patt as follows—

K 12[14,14] rnds; p 2 rnds; k 1 rnd.

Work chart C, rep 4 patt rnds 5 times in all, then work rnds 1 and 2 once more, thus working 22 chart C rnds in total.

K 1 rnd; p 2 rnds; k 14[16,16] rnds; p 2 rnds; k 1 rnd.

Work chart B, rep 6 patt rnds 3 times in all, then work rnds 1 through 4 once more, thus working 22 chart B rnds in total.

K 1 rnd; p 2 rnds.

Work in st st only over sleeve sts and cont to dec on every 3rd rnd as set until 60[64,66] sts rem.

Work in st st without shaping until sleeve measures 39[40,41]cm (151/4[153/4,161/4]in).

Cuff

Dec rnd: K0[0,1]; (k2tog, k8[6,6]) 6[8,8] times; k0[0,1]. 54[56,58] sts.

Change to 31/4mm (US 3) needles and work k1, p1 rib for 7cm (23/4in).

Cast off in rib.

Neckband

With RS facing and 31/4mm (US 3) needles, beg at centre of left shoulder strap and pick up and k 24 sts evenly down left side of front neck to front neck holder; k 13[15,17] sts from front neck holder; pick up and k 32 sts up right front neck to back neck holder; k 43[45,47] sts from back neck holder; pick up and k 8 sts to centre of left shoulder strap; then cast on 7 sts onto RH needle. 127[131,135] sts. Work back and forth in rows as follows—

Row 1 (WS): P6; *k1, p1; rep from * to last 7 sts; p7.

Row 2: P1; *k1, p1; rep from * to end of row.

Rep these 2 rows until 16 rows in total have been completed, AND AT THE SAME TIME make buttonholes on 4th and 12th rows as follows—

Buttonhole row (RS): P1; k1; p1; yo; k2tog; *k1, p1; rep from * to end of row. Keeping continuity of rib patt, work 3 rows without shaping. Cast off in rib.

Finishing

Sew cast-on edge of 7 extra sts on neckband to inside of neckline. Sew on buttons. Rinse, short spin and dry garment on a woolly board (see page 124). Do not press.

Sheep of the Month Wensleydale

Under this month's spotlight this month is The Wensleydale, producer of the world's finest lustre longwool

History

The Wensleydale sheep originated and developed in the early 19th Century in North Yorkshire and derives from a now-extinct breed called the 'Bluecap'. The Bluecap was the result of cross-breeding a Leicester ram with a Teeswater ewe, which resulted in the birth of the first Bluecap in 1839.

Distinctive qualities

The Wensleydale is large, like its ancestor the Bluecap, (which had dark skin and excellent, long curly wool). Wensleydale rams can weigh up to 140kg and ewes 100kg. Both sexes of this hardy longwool sheep, with its visually striking blue head and ears, are polled.

Wool

Ruth Tomblason of Wensleydale Longwool Sheep Shop lists the peculiar qualities of the fleece as "its silky feel, lustre and long curly length". It's also absolutely kemp-free. Because of Wensleydale's long staple, it is worsted spun. This means that all the fibres are combed in the same direction, producing a yarn that's strong and lean, rather than bulky.

To buy Wensleydale yarns, locally hand knitted garments, fleeces for felters and spinners, visit www.wensleydalelongwoolshop.co.uk

Technical information

Staple length: 15-30 cm

Micron range: 32.5-34

Full fleece weight between 3.5-7 kg

There are two types of Wensleydale sheep, the white to creamy colour and the black – a sheep which can actually be a gentle brown or grey. The black Wensleydale occurs naturally and is the result of a double recessive gene. The differing colourings of wool are a spinner's dream – this gorgeous wool is therefore highly sought-after.

Yarn to garment

Most common, the wool is worsted-spun, giving the wool great strength and is used to produce luxury yarns for filigree weaves, suiting fabrics, crochet and knitting. The yarn is also a good choice for felting and for use in embroidery and occasionally in upholstery fabrics.

Yarn from the breed is ideal to use when featuring special effects in hand knitting as Ruth says 'wensleydale wool is more akin to silk so drapes beautifully, a plain stocking stitch shows the sheen and lustre but cables and textures are also excellent.'

Wensleydale is also an ideal wool when knitting a Gansey. The Gansey became a garment for fishermen as they needed a hard wearing garment whilst still providing warmth and comfort that would protect against the sea water and these were traditionally knitted by the wives of the fishermen.

The wool is extremely soft and warm and with the fleece of Wensleydale being highly sought after by hand spinners and rug makers alike, this breed has certainly become versatile in it's wool and fleeces making it a popular choice with everyone.

Playa del Cardi

'Playa del Cardi is a seamless hooded cardigan that is incredibly light and airy. Perfect for those warm summer nights that require a little glitz. Wear it with jeans, or pack it for you next tropical adventure!'

Special stitch patterns

M1 - Make 1 stitch by knitting in the bar in between stitches

Bobble - Loosely work ([k1,yo] 2 times, k1) in the same stitch

Pattern notes

Playa del Cardi is worked seamless from the bottom up. The sleeves are worked in the round, then the body is worked flat on circular needles. Both sleeves are then joined to body, and the cardigan yoke and hood are worked flat.

Hang out the Bunting!

Best of British Bunting Challenge

Knit challenges you to make the most of your scrap yarn by transforming it into bunting for our fantastic Best of British Bunting Challenge!

We are looking for lovely "Best of British" bunting to appear on our stands over the Summer shows! The brighter and bolder, the better!

THE CHALLENGE

Design and knit one metre of bunting. Be adventurous! Any original design will be accepted and you don't need to follow the traditional triangle shape. A selection of the winning designs will feature in our Best of British issue over the summer and will receive brilliant prizes, including:

Top books and Rialto Lace yarn packs from Debbie Bliss;
Rowan Summerspun yarn packs and brochures;
A "make your own" rug kit from Rachel John Extreme textiles;
Jamieson & Smith patriotic 4ply, plus more to be confirmed.

If you are contacted you will need to supply your written pattern text and charts on request, for inclusion. If you would like your bunting returned (within six months of receipt), be sure to enclosed a stamped, addressed envelope.

All entries must be in by: 30th May 2012.

Good luck and happy knitting!

Brenda Castiel

Lola's Top

'The design was inspired by the look of 17th century ladies' dresses. At night they showed a deep décolletage, and by day they tucked a bit of lace over their shoulders and in the neckline, to make it a more modest day dress'

Pattern notes

The design is done in stocking stitch with some purl accents for texture. It's knitted in the round with raglan sleeves and with no sewing required. An attached I-cord is used for the edging along the neck. The buttonholes (where the insert buttons go) are disguised by the I-cord. The hem and sleeves are finished with a tiny ruffle. One of the 2 inserts has lace with a pretty zigzag edge. It will attach to the sweater with small snap fasteners. The second insert is striped, with a tiny ruffled edge, and it attaches to the sweater with silver buttons.

Work 8 more rounds, then repeat increase round once more. 184 (210: 232: 254: 276: 298) sts. Continue even, in pattern, until garment measures 33 (34.5: 36: 37: 38: 39.5) cm or 13 (13.5: 14: 14.5: 15: 15.5) inches, or desired length for your body. End on Row 5 of Pattern St.

Note: If you have a longer torso, this is the place to add length.

Armholes

Divide for armholes. *Work to 5 (6: 6: 7: 7: 8) sts before marker. Place 10 (12: 12: 14: 14: 16) sts on holder or scrap yarn, removing marker. Repeat from *. Work till end. Place back sts on holder or waste piece of yarn, and place front sts on another holder or waste piece of yarn. 82 (93: 104: 113: 124: 133) sts for back, same for front.

Put aside while you work the sleeves.

Sleeves (make 2)

CO 69 (72: 78: 84: 90: 90) sts. Join to knit in the round. Place marker to denote the beginning of the round. (If you're comfortable with the technique, it's a great idea to knit both at once; then they are absolutely the same. Instructions are here: www.knitty.com/ISSUEwinter02/PATTstraightlaced.html)

Round 2: Knit

Round 3: *K2tog, yo, repeat from * to end

Round 4-5: Knit

Round 6: *K1, k2tog, repeat from * to end. 46 (48, 52, 56, 60, 60) sts

Knit 12 rounds

Begin Pattern St : k4 [0: 1: 2: 0: 0], p1 [0: 1: 1: 0: 0], work 1st round of special stitch pattern to last 5 [0: 2: 3: 0: 0] stitches before row maker. P1 [0: 1: 1: 0: 0], k4[0: 1: 2: 0: 0]

At the same time, maintaining pattern as set, after 5 cm/2 in, begin increases Increase round: k1, kfb, work in pattern to 2 stitches before row marker, *kfb, k1, 48 (50: 54: 58: 62: 62) sts.

Increase 2 sts every 8 rounds, 11 times in all. 68 (70: 74: 78: 82: 82) sts.

Work even until sleeve measures approximately 43 (44: 45: 47: 48: 48) cm/17 (17.5: 18: 18.5: 19: 19) in. End on Row 5 of Pattern St.

HINT: If you would like the sleeves a bit longer, this is the place to add length. Place stitches on holder and make second sleeve.

Join the sleeves

On each sleeve, put 10 (12: 12: 14: 14: 16) sts of the underarm (divided equally on either side of the marker) on a stitch holder or waste yarn, removing marker. Place the sleeves next to the sweater, underarm to underarm, right sides facing. This is how to join the sleeves. Place the front of the piece on needles. Work the front of the sweater, place marker, and join live stitches from first sleeve. Place next marker, work the sts for back, place marker, and join live stitches from second sleeve. Place final marker and join to work in the round. 280 (302: 332: 354: 384: 398) sts. Resume Pattern St
Work even for 1.25 cm/ 1/2 inch.

Raglan shaping

Now we will start shaping the raglan shoulders and after 1.25 cm/ 1/2 inch, start shaping the V-neck.

Knit in pattern. Decrease 2 sts at each of the 4 markers, as follows: *work to within 3 sts of marker, k2tog, k1, sm, k1, SSK. Repeat from *. Work to end of round. 8 sts decreased.

Work a decrease round every 2 rounds. After 1.25 cm/ 1/2 inch of raglan shaping start V neck shaping. Place different coloured marker or scrap yarn to mark the centre front.

V-neck shaping

Work to one st before centre marker. Cast off 2 sts, work to end. You will now be working back and forth, not in the round. Continue raglan shaping on the RS rows.

Turn. Work WS.

Decrease at neck edges as follows on RS. For right front, k1, ssk, work to last 3 sts for left front, k2tog, k.. Dec 1 st at each neck edge every RS row, 11 times, then every 4th row, 3 (5: 6: 7: 7) times. Work even thereafter, continuing raglan shaping.

Next RS row work right front and right shoulder in patt as established, dec 3 sts evenly across the back section using k2tog, to shape back neck area. Work to end of row.

Continue raglan shaping until 30 (34, 35, 37, 38, 40) sts remain. Cast off.

Graft underarms together, sewing any holes that remain.

Follow Lace Chart until all the lace is completed and only garter sts remain. Decrease 1 st at each end of yarn until 4 sts remain. Cast off.

Finishing

Weave in all loose yarn ends. Block to size.

Take the striped insert and pin it into place. Carefully mark along the neckline (with small safety pins or yarn scraps) exactly where you would like the 6 buttons to be.

Starting at the back of the neck, work the applied i-cord (see Notes) around neckline. When you reach the points that are marked for buttons, work 2 rows of the i-cord without picking up sts from the neck, i.e. you will leave a small gap which will become the buttonhole. When you resume picking up neck sts you will leave a gap of 2 sts on the neck as well. Repeat for each buttonhole. When you have reached the point where you began, cut the yarn, thread the end through a tapestry needle and sew the 2 ends together.

Lay the striped insert under the neckline and mark where the buttons should be to line up with the buttonholes you have made in the i-cord.

Sew on buttons. Sew small backing buttons on WS to reinforce the buttons. Take the lace insert and pin in place. Mark exactly where you would like the snap fasteners to be and sew them in place.

Deborah Newton's Seaming Seminar

CHAPTER 3 - Seaming Seminar

As we learned in the last chapter, some yarns defy blocking, so it is important to perfect your assembly skills so your sweaters always look neat and polished. Whether you sew traditional seams or join by less conventional methods, assembly does not have to be hard and should not be daunting. In this chapter I'll present traditional and more creative ways of joining pieces, as well as a step-by-step approach to a project's assembly.

Cheat Sheet

Make Your Stitches Stand Out!

A fun technique is to add seam stitches on the wrong side of the edges of your pieces. This creates a visible ridge on the right side that outlines the pieces. Ridges can lend an "edgy" look to garments, or can enhance a patchwork effect.

I made this old favorite sweater before I started adding seam stitches to my designs.

You can see how sewing the reverse stockinette fabric to itself causes a deep, unattractive dent.

Three Simple Rules

There are several common myths about seaming—that it is difficult, that it is tedious and that seams should be invisible. None of these are true! Once you learn a few basic rules and some simple techniques, seaming can be a fairly easy and enjoyable process. Also, it is fun to be creative when joining pieces—sewing is not the only way to join pieces. Knitting, crocheting or embroidering them together are other options.

As I have learned over the years, seams need not be invisible—outline your seams and let them be a detail of your sweater! In this chapter, I discuss a number of "rules" for seaming, but I don't want you to think that means it is rigid. Knowing that a process supports you, and having a vision as a guide, is the goal. Those who work with me know that I chuckle over mistakes and I always try to accommodate errors. Don't be rigid—just remember the helpful guidelines, test them, and know that in time your seaming will be just right. I learned these guidelines gradually, over a long period of time! Try to have a relaxed yet attentive approach to finishing—I do! Even though we want our work to look perfect, that takes time and experience. As a beginning knitter, and even in the early years of being a professional designer, I used to struggle with seaming knitted pieces for sweater assembly. Each sweater presented its own challenges. I had to consider different fibers, different yarns—fine, heavy, textured, novelty—different pattern stitches, different garment types. And certain parts of a sweater, especially sleeve caps where a smooth curve is generally desired, were always challenging! I had to find a way to make this easier for myself. After years of learning, I came up with three simple rules to follow when assembling a sweater. I almost never break these rules. Here is an overview of these rules and how they came to be:

Rule #1

Seam Stitches Are a Finisher's Best Friend

Before beginning to knit a new project, always check to see if your pattern incorporates stitches at the edges that will make seaming easier. If not, add seam stitches to your pieces when you knit them. I find sloppy or what I call "ragged" finishing in my designs unacceptable. As I've mentioned before, I love and honor the handmade nature of the knitted fabric and expect it to be a little bit uneven and charmingly imperfect! But to have a garment that is less than crisp in the seams and at the edges makes me cringe. Why work so hard on the knitting only to have the eye drawn to the poor finishing? My most important red-alert about seaming came in the early days of my career; the difficulty I had with one particular sweater made me realize I needed to take more care with preparing for finishing. I was sewing together an Austrian-inspired knitted jacket. The background fabric of the sweater was reverse stockinette stitch. As I sewed the purl stitches to the purl stitches in the reverse stockinette stitch pattern for the side seams, I hated the way the seam became "indented," or rolled inward. To make things harder, the yarn was a wool synthetic blend, so I knew I could not steam the seam to open it up without damaging the fabric.

When I started to sew the sleeve seams, I was even more appalled. I had worked my increases one stitch in from the edge, but as I seamed, the “indented” look was still there, and the increases were all too obvious. The seam had a very messy appearance where the edges met. I pulled the seam out many times, trying different ways to make it look better. First I attempted to sew a seam that was only a half stitch from each side, rather than one stitch. But this was also terribly uneven looking. Then I tried to sew further into the fabric of the sleeve, to avoid seeing the looped increases—now my sleeve was too narrow. By the time I was through, the seam looked even worse from having been redone so many times. I eventually realized that seaming was not as much of a problem when I was working on smooth plain stockinette-stitch fabric as it was in the more textured reverse stockinette-stitch fabric. I had a eureka moment when I realized that all the issues could be solved—with almost any pattern stitch or yarn—if: 1) I added two stockinette stitches at the edges of my pieces, and 2) all increases and decreases were worked within the seam stitches. My seam could then be worked between these stitches. By doing these things, all my seams are outlined in a smooth yet inconspicuous way. It is especially pretty to outline shaped areas with seam stitches. A fitted garment, with shaping at the waist, for example, always benefits from this kind of attention. In addition, the ugly indented look is avoided because stockinette stitch tends to push a little outward at the seam, whereas other textured patterns, such as reverse stockinette stitch, indent in the seam. These stitches can be worked on any seam to make sewing easier, not just at the side seams.

Here the raglan seam is outlined clearly and decoratively by the seam stitches.

WHY TWO SEAM STITCHES?

One seam stitch is not enough! Through experimentation I have learned that you have to have two seam stitches to always have a smooth seam, without indentation. When you have two stitches at your edges, you can seam between them. I now plan all my sweaters to accommodate these extra seam stitches. And you can do that too, almost all the time, regardless of the pattern you are using. This solves other problems, too. If you are a knitter who usually works increases into the first and/or last stitch of a row, you know that this bumpy edge can be seamed to the inside, so that the jagged edge is not visible. But I am sure you see that the seam itself is often a little uneven. By incorporating two seam stitches and working increases next to them, the seam is accented and its line is smooth and even.

HOW TO ADD SEAM STITCHES

There are two things to consider when adding seam stitches, especially if you add two stitches to each side, as I do. When seaming the body of a sweater, one stitch gets seamed to the inside and the other outlines the seam. Four stitches total remain on the outside of the garment, thus adding four stitches beyond the pattern stitches. In addition, if you add to the fronts of a cardigan to outline the edges, then pick up between, this number can jump to six extra stitches. (When adding stitches for picking up at the edges, rather than seaming, I refer to these as “edge stitches.”) When I first started incorporating seam stitches, I realized that if I added these stitches, they would contribute to the width of the sweater. I was adding eight stitches at the sides, total. Four of them would be seamed to the inside, so they were fine. With finer yarns, an extra four or six stitches beyond the pattern stitches is a negligible amount and will not add considerably to the finished width of the garment. However, with a heavy yarn, the addition of these extra stitches can add an inch, or even two inches, to the finished measurement of your sweater. So if you are concerned about adding extra width, see if you can subtract a stitch from the pattern stitch of your garment in order to add a seam stitch. With some pattern stitches, it is easy to lose one stitch of the pattern and change it to a plain stockinette-stitch seam stitch. Other times you will have to truncate a pattern, if possible.

EXCEPTIONS TO THE RULE

As with most rules, there are a few exceptions to this one. When I add seam stitches to an edge that I am going to pick up into, I often incorporate only one edge stitch. Working the seam stitches in stockinette is not always ideal, such as when the fabric of the sweater has a tighter row gauge than stockinette stitch. This happens with many textured patterns that have denser than average row gauge. Stockinette stitch—our seam stitch pattern—often has a ratio of five stitches to seven rows; a denser pattern might have a row gauge with a ratio of five stitches to ten rows. If the row gauge of the seam stitches is looser than that of the main pattern, the “outline” stitch will be bubbly and not match the pattern next to it. In this case, I might add only one stockinette stitch as a seam stitch, and seam between the pattern and the single seam stitch. When seaming garter stitch, I do not add seam stitches.

I avoided an ugly seam in this reverse stockinette stitch-based fabric by adding extra stitches that make seaming easier and both outline and highlight the seam.

Rule #2

Check Your Pieces Before You Seam

As I mentioned in the last chapter, I always lay out my pieces and examine them before seaming. I spread them out flat and look closely at each piece one at a time and then in comparison with the other pieces. These are the questions I ask myself as I review the pieces:

- Are all the body pieces the same length?
- Do they all correspond to my schematic drawing?
- For a cardigan, are both fronts the same shape and size?
- Do the sleeves match each other in size and shape?
- Do I want to seam or block any areas of a garment now—or after the assembly is complete?
- If I have not already, do I want to weave in the ends now, into the fabric? Or should I wait until later, and weave them into my seams?
- Is one side edge of a piece looser than the other? If the answer is yes, I make a note of the looser edge that will have an edging sewn or picked up along it so that extra attention can be paid to it.

I cannot emphasize this step enough. I always want an overview of the project, from both visual and measurement points of view. I look closely now to see if there are any errors I cannot accept. And at this stage I often lift and drape the fabric of the pieces in my hands to see how they move. It helps me “feel” what my seaming tension should be, and ponder what needle size I might want to use for edgings in the stages ahead.

Rule #3

Seam with the Right Side Facing

I’m going to make this point throughout this chapter, because it is so important: Always seam with the right side of the fabric facing you so you can see what the finished seam looks like as you go. My fabric sewing and costume design background has provided me with a lot of inspiration for my designs—garment shapes, techniques and details. But when sewing by hand or by machine, I always seamed with the wrong side facing. For a long time, I assumed that sewing knitwear with the wrong side facing was also the way to go. I learned that there is a big difference. When you sew a seam in a sweater, you want to see what the seam looks like as you are working it. You don’t want to turn the piece around and get an ugly surprise!

Seaming Basics

In the next few sections of this chapter, we’ll look in depth at various seaming scenarios and the exact techniques needed. First, let’s go over a few basics that will help make your sweater assembly easier in any situation.

Tips and Tricks

Using the right tools—in this case needles and yarn—will put you on the right foot toward perfect seaming.

SEWING NEEDLE SIZE

Choose your blunt tapestry needle to make seaming as easy as possible. A needle with a curved tip helps to dip under the “bars” between the seam stitches. For fine-gauge knits, use a small needle, not a bulky one; it will keep the seam stitches firm and close to one another.

YARN LENGTH

Sew with as long a strand as is comfortable for you. If the yarn is fuzzy and wears out as you sew, use a shorter length or a different yarn (see below). I often plan to have my strand end as I approach the armhole, a few inches below if possible, where I like to join a new long strand. Then I can flow into the sleeve cap or armhole join, a more demanding area, without adding another strand of seaming yarn again.

JOINING A NEW SEWING STRAND

If your sewing strand runs out or breaks, and is too short to sew with, leave the end hanging to the right side of the knitting, emerging from the top of the two bars between the seam stitches from which it emerges. Re-thread your needle and scoop under the same two bars between the seam stitches from which the short end is hanging. Leave an end of the new strand hanging on the right side. Take both ends and tuck them to the wrong side of the fabric before resuming seaming with the new strand. You can weave these ends into the seam later. When you weave them in, do it so one goes up and the other goes down, to eliminate bulk all in one place on the seam.

WHICH YARN TO USE?

Whenever possible, I like to seam with the yarn used for the sweater, as I think it contributes to the uniform drape of the garment. But when a yarn is fuzzy or softly textured or loosely plied, the friction of seaming can easily cause it to break. If this happens, you can do one of two things:

1. For a loosely plied or loosely twisted yarn, roll the piece of seaming yarn with the palm of your hand on your thigh, holding the other end in your other hand. This will tighten the twist of the yarn before you thread it into the eye of the needle. Sometimes I lightly moisten the yarn to keep this twist, or I keep twisting it while sewing to keep it firm.
2. Use a different yarn to seam. Try to match weight and fiber content in a smoother, stronger yarn. If the pieces are soft and drapery, use a soft yarn. For a springy, bouncy fabric, choose a yarn that also has some elasticity to match.

Seaming Order

When you have your pieces examined (blocked if necessary), your tools lined up and your schematic at hand, set aside a time to start your finishing. I never attempt any finishing when I am tired. I like to be fully able to focus—and enjoy the process! I like to do most of the seaming at the same time, so my tension in the sewing is the same. I might spend several sessions completing the sweater. I also like to do matching edges at the same time, so my tension is the same for both. This is the order I follow:

FOR A CAP-SLEEVE SWEATER

Step 1 Sew front(s) to back at the shoulders.

Step 2 Sew side seams next in order to tame the shape of the garment, and prevent the pieces from waving around.

Step 3 Sew sleeve seams and set the sleeves aside (to prevent the extra weight of the sleeves from making finishing awkward).

Step 4 Work neckline and front edges.

Step 5 Attach buttons, zippers or any other closure elements or collar details.

Step 6 Finally, sew the sleeve caps into the armholes.

FOR A RAGLAN OR SADDLE SHOULDER SWEATER

For a garment in which the top of the sleeve forms part of the neckline edge, the front(s) and back have to be sewn to the sleeves so any edgings can be worked at the neckline edge. In this case, sleeve and side seams can be done before edgings.

FOR OTHER PROJECTS

You should seam in the order that makes things easiest for you. Less weight is better, so do not seam everything together unless necessary to complete the edgings or perform other finishing tasks. There are many kinds of seams, and I have had a lot of experience with every kind. I can see why people are daunted—there are just so many different kinds of seams and they each require a different approach. Here are some of my favorite examples of basics that have served me well. In the projects at the end of this chapter, you will see some other ways of approaching seaming and joining.

The Interview

Helen Barker takes time out to talk to machine knit designer, maker and researching specialist

Amy Twigger Holroyd

K: What first attracted you to fashion and design?

A: I was always making things when I was a kid and I learned to knit when I was about five or six with my Nana. My Mum used to do a lot of sewing, so I got into that and when I was a teenager, I used to make my own clothes. I love the 3D nature of making clothes and the immediacy of it, that you can make something for yourself to wear. When I was 18 I went to study Fashion Design with Technology at Manchester Metropolitan University.

K: Where do you get your inspiration?

A: So many places! It depends what I'm working on. When I'm making new Keep & Share designs, I usually create a book of inspiration which might pull together all sorts of bits and pieces, from natural forms and photos with great colour combinations, to street fashion or interesting characters from history or literature. I also take inspiration from the possibilities of knit, I'm obsessed by seamlessness. So often, shape and detail ideas come from experimenting on the machine.

K: How long does it take you to produce a garment, from your initial ideas to the finished piece?

A: For the Keep & Share garments, it can take a while! The ideas are often brewing in my head and on paper for a few weeks, while I'm doing other things. Then I start to sample fabrics, structures, colours and weights, just making small fabric samples. Then I'll start calculating the garment and knitting sample panels. Often, I make evolved versions of previous styles, I tend to use geometric shapes and unconventional construction methods: I've developed my own ways of making garments. It takes a couple of days of sampling the garment to get it right, I often have to knit it two or three times. I then have to write up the instructions so I can follow them again in the future.

K: Take us through your processes for creating a garment.

A: If the pattern is worked out, the making process involves knitting panels, often on more than one machine. My machine-knitting style involves lots of manual processes and often my signature seamless joining methods. Once the panels are knitted, I have to finish the piece. Sometimes I need to use a linker to sew the remaining seams and then there's the inevitable sewing-in of ends, which takes ages!

K: What are the most exciting pieces you have created?

A: I think all my pieces are exciting. I love making pieces for specific customers and then hearing how much they are enjoying wearing them, it's wonderful to make something especially when I've come up with a new technique or colour combination. I'm excited while I'm making the piece and when I see how it comes out. In my other work, I've done communal hand-knitting projects involving loads of knitters and they're wonderful because they show everyone working together. One of the most eye-catching of these is the Knitted Engine that I made for BMW and the Lichfield Festival in 2011, it's a knitted/crocheted three-dimensional BMW engine, presented like an exploded diagram.

K: Are there any aspects you find challenging?

A: The most challenging bit of my work is just fitting it all in! I always have lots of different projects on the go.

K: How did stitch hacking and pattern blogging come about?

A: I'd been thinking about ways of putting something of yourself into the clothes that you wear, or the garments you knit from patterns. I like the idea of people playing with garments and patterns and taking ownership of them, and then one day when I was working on the knitting machine, I had the idea of stitch-hacking and put the two ideas together.

K: Could these techniques be used for most garments?

A: Yes, they could be used for most knitted garments. Stitch-hacking is a process done on existing knitted fabrics. It's most straightforward on stocking stitch, it's a case of opening up the fabric, laddering and re-forming stitches into knit and purl combinations, or more complex structures. With a bit of thought, you can also do it on other structures. There are four stitch-hacked pieces in Made in the Middle, one Fair Isle, one hand-knit piece in stocking stitch and two industrially made fine-knitted garments that were really time-consuming to do!

Pattern-blogging is all about adapting existing patterns. So while you're knitting a standard knitting pattern, you might add a little deviation to show it's yours, maybe add in a motif, or your name. It's easiest to do in a plain area, though I've also done it on a Shetland lace shawl, putting in my name and the date I started and the date I finished (exhibited in Made in the Middle).

K: Keep&Share is your brainchild. How did you come up with the ideas and make your visions real?

A: I came up with the concept for Keep & Share during my MA. I became interested in how design could be used to help us live more sustainably and in particular, how we might be able to have a different kind of fashion where we consumed less cheap, throw-away clothing. The idea of Keep & Share is that we could get more, goodness, from each garment if we kept pieces longer and shared them by handing down or wearing in different ways. After I graduated, I launched Keep & Share as a slow fashion label, working as a designer-maker from my Herefordshire workshop.

K: What made you become Eco-aware and decide to marry it up with fashion and design?

A: While there are lots of reasons we throw clothes away, I think the main reason we keep them, and keep wearing them, is because of an emotional bond. So, I try to encourage an emotional bond between my customers and their knitwear by providing an interesting and genuine story behind each piece. On my website, I tell the story of the inspiration for each design and then I also try to tell my customers a lot about who I am and the craft techniques I use to make my pieces. Hopefully, then they will have a much better, and nicer, idea of where their piece was made, compared to something from a high street shop. Also, my customers often ask for tweaks to their pieces, such as a particular colour or size, so that makes the piece even more personal to them.

K: How do you keep them coming back if your garments are designed to last?

A: Excellent service! I do have loyal customers who gradually add to their collection of Keep & Share knitwear, but it is a slow process, which is fine with me. My business isn't about huge quantities. In addition to designing and making garments, I'm increasingly running workshops and projects, making hand-knit patterns and kits and making pieces for exhibition, so I've got lots of different strands to my work which keep each other in balance.

K: You advocate the importance of slow-fashion. Do you find it harder getting your message across now there are so many discounted fashion stores and an acceptance of throw away fashion?

Amy: No, if anything, the continued growth of fast fashion means that more and more people are getting bored with it and questioning both the environmental and social sustainability, but also whether it's giving them a positive fashion experience.

K: Do you think throw-away fashion attitudes will last or are people beginning to spend more time making their own clothes?

A: Throw away attitudes aren't just in fashion, they can be found throughout our culture. So it's not an easy thing to change, but on the other hand, attitudes do shift over time. As the economics of the clothing industry change, clothes will become more expensive anyway. And I think more and more people are coming back to the idea of doing things for yourself, cooking, growing food, making clothes, and the joys of doing that.

K: Up-cycling is becoming increasingly more popular and accessible. What do you think needs to happen to keep this sustained in the public consciousness?

A: I think it's really important that we don't let upcycling become associated with one particular aesthetic and become part of a temporary fashion trend. That's what happened with eco-fashion in the 90s, actual sustainable thinking got mixed up with garments that looked natural and so when those garments went out of fashion, so did eco-fashion.

K: What is the best way to up-cycle?

A: Well, I'm really into people doing things themselves. What I like about working with existing garments is that I think they tell you what needs to be done to them. When you make a garment from scratch, you start from a blank slate and the choice can be a bit overwhelming. But when you take an existing piece, you can try it on and make informed decisions about what to change. Plus, you can make your intervention as big or small as you like, it doesn't have to take forever!

K: The Keep & Share mentality changes your whole perspective on how to shop. Did you find it hard to change these habits?

A: Well, no, because the Keep & Share mentality comes from my thinking! For years, I've been frustrated by high street clothes and how they are designed and produced. If anything, I'm glad to entirely bypass the high street and hunt out either vintage pieces, or items from small scale designers.

K: Shopping for items that will enhance clothes you already have rather than buying new garments, what would you say that should be key wardrobe staples?

A: Everyone is different and so everyone's wardrobe staples should be different, but my most dependable item, which I never have enough of, is a good long-sleeved top that I can layer with vintage dresses and my Keep & Share chunky knits.

K: Do you find it hard to share the clothes you no longer feel you want?

A: I certainly am not good at getting rid of clothes! But that's okay, I see the sharing part of Keep & Share as a long-term thing. Also, because I feel attached to the clothes I have, it makes me think hard before I buy something new.

K: When you studied for your MA in European Fashion and Textile Design in the UK, the Netherlands and France, did you see a difference in the attitudes surrounding clothes design?

A: My experience was more about the difference in fashion education, in the Netherlands they had quite a conceptual approach to fashion, while at the college in France, we learned all about how the fashion industry works, the good, the bad and the ugly.

K: What can people expect when they sign up to one of your courses?

A: I run hand and machine-knitting workshops at my studio just outside Hereford. The courses range from workshops for absolute beginners to more specialised making skills and then workshops in calculating your own knitting patterns, and in stitch-hacking. I also run a great workshop where you can come and machine-knit a cardigan in a weekend, even if you've never used a machine before! I keep my groups small and love sharing my skills, so the workshops are always friendly and relaxed! I have people coming from all over the country (and even occasionally from overseas), so have a list of lovely local B&Bs where you can stay, and we finish the weekend courses with Sunday lunch at the village pub, it's very civilised!

K: What advice would you give to others who want to start living by the slow fashion ethic?

A: Dig where you stand, that is, go for it!

K: What does 2012 have in store for you?

A: My stitch-hacking work will be exhibited in Made in the Middle. A stitch-hacked piece and the Knitted Engine will be exhibited in WOW: The Wonder of Wool and the Art of Knit and Stitch at Rheged in Cumbria, which runs from the 14th January to the 15th April. I'm also hoping to take my Keep & Share Knitting Tent to music festivals once again in the summer.

Erica Jackofsky - Fiddle Knits Designs

Black Eyed Susie

'Black Eyed Susie is a simple hip-length sweater that is perfect for pairing up with leggings, jeans, or skirts, which means you can wear it practically anytime and anywhere'

Erica Jackofsky, aka Fiddle Knits, has been designing and publishing her brand of patterns online and in print for the past three years. In that time what began as just a hobby turned into her full time 'job' (in quotations because she says no matter how stressful the deadlines get, it never feels like work!).

Erica's focus is on knitted items that are beautiful, fun to knit, and completely wearable.

You can find more of Erica's patterns and links to her hand dyed yarn shop on the Fiddle Knits Webpage at HYPERLINK www.FiddleKnits.com

While you're on the Fiddle Knits homepage sign up for newsletter to receive discounts, patterns announcements, and information on her yarn and pattern clubs.

Pattern notes

Buttons are placed along the bottom sides for decoration and function. If you make your sweater fitted (with negative ease) buttons may be left open to allow more room through the hips. Photos show the buttons closed and modeled with slight positive ease.

Construction details

Black Eyed Susie is a bottom-up raglan style sweater. It is a "minimal fuss finishing" design. After you complete the body you will go back to the stitches cast on for the sleeves and pick up to work a simple ribbed cuff that matches the cowl collar. When you have finished all your knitting the only sewing involved is tacking on the buttons at the lower body.

The trickiest part of this pattern comes when joining the front and back pieces together after the lace border. When doing this just remember that the front section will be on the top (on both sides) and the act of knitting the pieces together will most likely feel intuitive.

Pattern starts Back bottom section

Stitches shown in bold on Rows 1-8 form pattern repeat and are also represented in the border chart.

*Repeat Rows 1–8 another 2 times — 3 repeats worked in total.

Note: Your piece should be approximately 5ins long at this point. If it is shorter than 5ins you will have to rethink the button spacing instructions on the front section.

Cut yarn and remove all stitch markers. Place back section aside (still on needles) to join later with front section.

Front bottom section

Front section is worked the same as back with the addition of button holes.

Stitches shown in bold on Rows 1–8 form pattern repeat and are also represented in the border chart.

Using second circular needle, cast on 91(105: 113: 121: 129: 145) sts.

*Repeat Rows 1–8 another 2 times — 3 repeats worked in total.

On last row of the third repeat remove all stitch markers.

Join front and back together

Pay special attention to this part in the instructions, but don't panic, it may seem trickier written down than it will be when you actually try and work it.

Important! Make sure you don't have any stitch markers on your knitting at this point.

You should have just ended by working a wrong side row on the front section of your sweater. Turn your work so you are ready to work a right side row. Now, pick up the back section of your sweater and turn this piece so the right side is facing you as well. Take the last 6 stitches and place them on a dpn.

Hold the dpn behind the first 6 stitches of the sweater's front section. Using your working [right] needle, knit the first stitch of the front together with the first stitch on the dpn. Repeat for the 2nd and 3rd stitches, place marker, knit the next 3 stitches together in the same manner. You should now have 3 stitches, stitch marker, 3 stitches on your right needle.

Knit across the front section until you come to the last 6 stitches of front. Now take the first 6 stitches of the back section, place these on a dpn, and hold behind the last 6 stitches of the front section. In the same manner as before, use your working [right] needle to knit a stitch from the front together with the first stitch on the dpn. Repeat for the 2nd and 3rd stitches, place marker, knit the next 3 stitches together in the same manner.

Knit across the back section until you come to the first stitch marker you placed. This is the new beginning of round marker. – 170(198: 214: 230: 246: 278)sts on needle.

Body

Knit every rnd for 1in, or until piece measure 6 inches from cast on edge. We are now ready to begin decreasing slightly for hip-to-bust shaping.

Set up for next section: K85(99: 107: 115: 123: 139) across front, slip side marker, k29(34: 37: 39: 42: 47) pm for shaping, k27(31: 33: 37: 39: 45) pm for shaping, k29(34: 37: 39: 42: 47).

Decrease section

Dec Rnd: K85(99: 107: 115: 123: 139) across front, sm, k29(34: 37: 39: 42: 47), sm, ssk, knit to 2 sts before next marker, k2tog, k29(34: 37: 39: 42: 47). Knit 8(5: 7: 10: 11: 8) rnds.

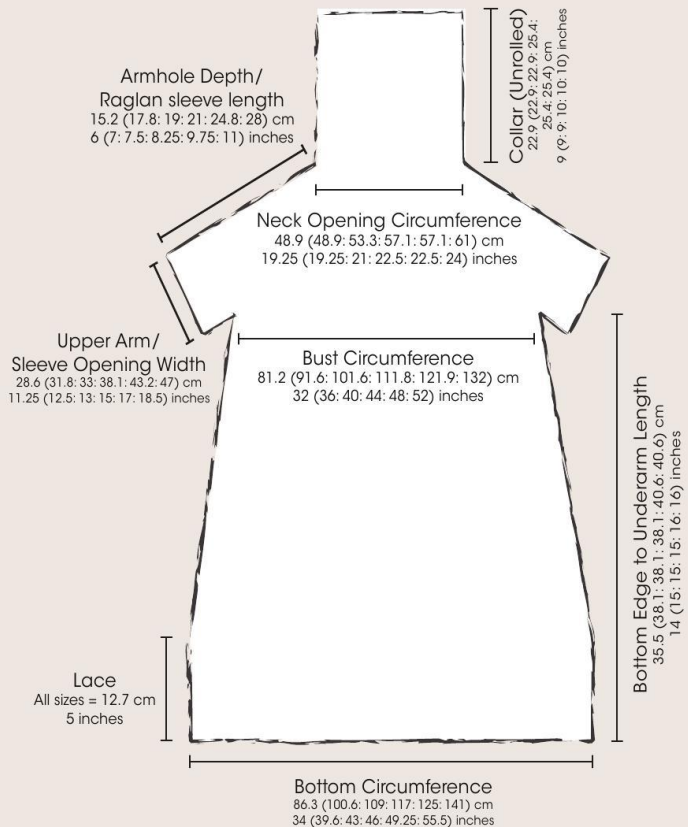

*Repeat decrease section 5(9: 7: 5: 5: 7) times — 160(180: 200: 220: 240: 264) sts remain.

Stitch Count Check: 85(99: 107: 115: 123: 139)sts for front of sweater; 75(81: 93: 105: 117: 125)sts for back of sweater.

Knit 4 (2.5: 2.5: 2.5: 4: 2.5)cm/1.5 (1: 1: 1: 1.5: 1)in, or until piece measures 35.5 (38: 38: 38: 40.5: 40.5)cm/14 (15: 15: 15: 16: 16)in. from cast on edge.

Take advantage of the fact you are working in the round and get the fit you want! Transfer all your stitches to a scrap piece of yarn and slip into your garment. The next step you will be taking is casting on for your sleeves, so check to make sure your sweater is as long as you would like it from hips to underarms. If you would like your sweater to be longer then simply knit even for a bit until you are comfortable with the length. Once you have achieved your desired look proceed to the next step.

Cast on for sleeves

During the sleeve set up rnds you will be removing and replacing stitch markers. Pay close attention to your stitch count to keep everything aligned as it should be. The second set up rnd turns out to be more of a row by the time you have completed it. Once you move on to Set Up III you will be working officially in the rnd once more.

The number of stitches you cast on for the sleeves may prove cumbersome. I chose to work with two circular needles (as you would for socks on 2 circs) for several rounds after Set Up Rnd III until the number of stitches was more manageable.

Set Up Rnd I: K159(178: 198: 217: 237: 261) sts. You should have 1(2: 2: 3: 3) sts left before end of rnd.

Set Up Rnd/Row II: Bind off 1(2: 2: 3: 3)sts, remove beginning of rnd marker, bind off 1(2: 2: 3: 3)sts, knit across 73(77: 89: 99: 111: 119) back sts removing decrease markers, bind off 1(2: 2: 3: 3: 3), remove marker, bind off 1(2: 2: 3: 3: 3), knit to end (until you come to the first bound off section).

Set Up Rnd III: Pm, cast on 54(58: 60: 68: 78: 86)sts for right arm, pm, k37(39: 45: 49: 55: 59), pm for new beginning of rnd, k36(38: 44: 50: 56: 60), pm, cast on 54(58: 60: 68: 78: 86)sts for left arm, k83(95: 103: 109: 117: 133) — 264(288: 312: 344: 384: 424) sts on needles.

Set Up Rnd IV: Knit until you come to the beginning of rnd marker you placed in the previous set up row.

Raglan decreases

Rnd 1: Knit.

Rnd 2: [Knit to 3 sts before marker, k2tog, k1, sm, k1, ssk] 4 times, knit to end of rnd.

*Repeat these 2 rnds a total of 21(24: 26: 29: 34: 38) times — 96(96: 104: 112: 120)sts remain.

Knit 1 rnd. Bind off all sts loosely.

Collar

Beginning at centre back and using size 7/4.5mm needle, pick up 96 (96: 104: 112: 112: 120) sts around neck opening.

Work in 1x1 ribbing (k1, p1) until collar measures 2.5 cm / 1 in.

Change to size 8/5mm needle and continue working in 1x1 ribbing for another 5 cm / 2 in.

Change to size 9/5.5mm needle and finish by working 1x1 ribbing until collar measures 23 (23: 25.5: 25.5: 25.5)cm/9 (9: 9: 10: 10: 10) in total.

Bind off all sts using sewn bind off method for stretch.

Sleeves

Using size 6/4mm dpns, pick up 56 (62: 64: 74: 84: 102) sts around arm opening. Place marker and join for working in the round.

Ribbing: [K1, p1] to end of rnd. Work even in 1x1 rib for 10 (11.5: 11.5: 13: 13: 13)cm/4 (4.5: 4.5: 5: 5: 5)in.

Bind off using sewn bind off.

Finishing

Blocking

When blocking your sweater pay special attention to the lace edging and the collar. You will want to block your lace downward to open up the stitches. The collar will need to be blocked out so it widens at the upper open edge.

Buttons

Sew buttons to ribbed portion on back bottom section to correspond with button holes.

Knit 1 round MC.
K2tog across round.
Cut yarn leaving 12 inch tail.
Thread tail onto darning needle and run through remaining stitches.

Secure with a stitch and weave tail into underside of hat.

Finishing

Fold brim on MC Purl round.
Pin 2 layers of brim together, then using CC1 on underside of work, sew the 2 layers together on the backside of the braid, using a basting stitch.
Using a hot iron, carefully press the K5 P2 ribbing only, especially at the cast on, flattening it out.
Pin the ribbing so it lies flat against the back of the anchors. Using CC1, whipstitch the ribbing in place - don't pull too hard on the working thread so work doesn't pucker and catch only strands on the backside of anchors - stitches should not show on right side of work. Weave any tails into backside of work and trim.

Brim can be folded up in the front and will stay in place. If desired, it can be tacked in place in the front.

Designer Biography

Catherine lives in Wiltshire with her husband, three hens and two cats. When she's not knitting up a storm, she can usually be found sewing and crocheting in her garden!

Catherine Waterfield Cat's Paw Cardigan

"I wanted to create something really wearable, and this traditional cat's paw motif fit the bill. I also find seaming knits really tedious, so I was keen to design something that required absolutely zero sewing!"

Continue working in this manner, increasing every rs row as established. When, on row 1 or 7 of the cats paw pattern repeat, there are 8 sts between the small and large markers bordering the pattern sts, move the small marker to be 1 st from the large marker, and incorporate these extra 7 sts into the pattern. At the same time, increase 1 st between the first and last small and large markers (the front sections' collar edge) every 6th row to create the v-neck shaping.

The Fluff Queen

Camilla Hair talks to a spinner who's definitely getting her daily fibre; local spinning group treasurer Sara Dootson-Graube

How many different types of spinning fibre can you name? Yak or possum, Trilobal nylon or plastic bottles, perhaps, soya beans, nettles or silk? Discovering spinning and sheep fleeces was just the beginning of a journey through spinning and fibres for Sara Dootson-Graube, a journey that's so far lasted 23 years and counting.

Aside from looking after her family, Sara runs a weekly spinning group with a regular turn-out of 15-20 spinners at all stages of their spinning 'life', from beginners to experts. How did Sara learn what was good – and not so good – when looking at fibres? If you've never handled a fleece before, what should you look for before accepting or refusing a woolly bag-full, apart from the obvious removal of animal poo?

"The first thing is debris – hay or straw, burrs, twigs and moss. If the fleece seems full of bits, then it could be a nuisance to process," says Sara. "Wiggling burrs out of fleece before washing or carding it can be very time-consuming. It also depends how much time you have: if you lead a busy life then it's best to say 'no' to a fleece full of vegetable matter."

Different problems occur with different fibres, too. Alpacas for example, like to roll on their backs, so their fibre can be very dusty. "Though it does come out reasonably readily," Sara says, "as the hair fibres are more slippery than wool from sheep. Remember, when choosing a fleece, that you want your spinning experience to be a pleasant, relaxing one, not hard labour."

The second thing Sara looks for is a good, open structure – the fleece or fibre shouldn't be matted and should part in your hands. "The strength of the fibre is also important for spinners," Sara says. "If an animal has been ill, it can reflect in the fleece, though some fibres are naturally stronger than others. Take a sample out and pull it between your fingers to see if it breaks."

There can be few things available to spinners today that Sara hasn't had a go at spinning. Her stash cupboard, discretely housed in one of her daughters' bedrooms, contains just about everything, from llama and camel to nylon. "Everything has its use," Sara laughs: "I wouldn't wear Trilobal nylon, but it's useful when you're making toys."

Does she have a favourite fibre? "Not really: if it can be spun, I'll like it! I do spin silk, but I'm not that much of a fan. I like the luxury fibres like yak and cashmere but time and again, I keep coming back to wool, as it's so forgiving."

Amongst sheep, Shetland is one of Sara's favourites for its easy-spinning nature and natural colour range. Of other sheep, Sara comments: "North Ronaldsay, with its

Fluff On Wheels

To see and feel many different natural fleece colours, this inexpensive wheel is one of several available on the Product Samples page at www.handmade presents.co.uk

Sara has even tried spinning dog hair, from a dog which was fed mainly on fish: "Amazingly, the high protein diet gave his fur a real lustre," Sara grins. (Native Canadians employed that tactic centuries ago when harvesting dog hair for their special tribal blankets: see Knit magazine issue 43: 'Of Woolly Dogs and Spinning Wheels'.)

Sara's spinning journeys through the plant kingdom include using bamboo, soya, Tencel, Ramie (nettle fibres) cotton and linen. "Soya has a certain stickiness to it when spinning. Tencel and Ramie handled nicely, though of these plant-based fibres, I preferred the workability and feel of bamboo. I've also tried spinning linen from a distaff – it felt quite a natural process.

Sara is always happy to try new fibres and techniques. "To me, it's about the process – does the fibre in question spin two distinct downy and kempy layers, really needs both to reflect its true character, so try carding them together. The longwools are rather labour-intensive but can be spun from the individual locks or put through wool combs. You need to have patience or a great desire to try some of these."

How can a spinner build up experience with different fibres without breaking the bank? "Sample packs," Sara says, "although usually small quantities, certainly give you enough to judge whether you'll like or feel confident enough when spinning them. Alternatively, buying 100 grams of a fibre and spinning fairly fine will give you enough to make something small, or even 50g of cashmere spun long-draw."

The variety of animal fibres Sara has tried include musk ox, possum, pigmy goat and llama. "I don't like llama fibre next to my skin. It's more hairy than alpaca and not as nice and slippery to spin. Musk ox is fabulously soft and feels like Angora, though it's not as elastic as other fibres. It's like yak in that you spin the downy part of the coat and it has a similarly short staple length, so it works well with long-draw."

There's one member of the bovine family Sara hasn't yet tried and that's buffalo, which is pretty expensive.

Talking of other creatures, Sara comments: "Possum has a lovely halo when it's spun. I had a blend with Merino. It retained its overriding softness and knitted up well. The pigmy goat was a friend's animal. De-hairing it was a nightmare, but spinning the downy part of the coat was great." Sara likes, but is wary of, mohair: "The locks can stick together so it's best to open them up or card them well before spinning." Sara also likes Angora but with so many friends and family being allergic to it, she's not able to use it regularly.

reliably and easily? When you're choosing fibres, the old saying rings true: you get what you pay for. You can strike it lucky and get a fantastic fleece for nothing from a friendly farmer, but remember that sheep today are primarily kept for meat, not for growing a good fleece.

"Roll the fleece out and have a good look at it before buying or accepting it. There's good and bad amongst all breeds: just because something says 'Shetland' it doesn't automatically mean it's good. Whatever you choose, embrace the nature of the fibre and work with it, not against it."

Going backwards to go forwards

Knit finds out how Sara Dootson-Graube's knitting addiction led her to take a step back in the making process – and take up spinning

K: Why did you start spinning?

S: I'm an avid knitter and I needed to feed my knitting habit! My interest was fuelled by the prospect of making materials I'd like to knit with, as opposed to what was offered in the shops.

K: How long have you been spinning?

S: My mother bought a castle-style (upright) 'Wee Peggy' spinning wheel as a decorative item in 1989. I tracked down some books through the local library and I began teaching myself how to spin.

K: Which type of fibre did you start with and what would you recommend for beginners?

S: When I first started, I bought a Herdwick fleece – a nice long staple and lots of colour variation – together with one orange and one blue carded batt. I still remember sitting on my parents' patio with my sister carding the fleece – it was very greasy! For beginners today, I'd recommend Blue-Faced Leicester tops, which are very easy to spin, or any other open-structured fleece or prepared tops. Having said that, I'm one for throwing away the rule book so if there's a particular fibre you want to try, then go for it.

K: Which spinning wheel do you use most and why?

S: Initially, I was prejudiced against wheels with two treadles – until I acquired one! These days, I tend to use my Majacraft Rose, probably the most because I'm a 'production spinner' and like to achieve results fast. I spin long-draw and the Rose works very well using this technique. I also have an Ashford Traditional for which I have a lace flyer: I use that a lot too. I do also have a Lendrum with a fast flyer and a Schacht Matchless, and I like the action and the results you can get on both of those. At Fibre-East, last summer, I bought a Turkish spindle from Ian Tait at IST Crafts. I'm really pleased with it and use it a lot to produce two-ply lace-weight.

K: What inspires you when putting colours and fibres together?

S: I tend to be led by what comes out of the bag: I like to let the fibres 'speak to me' first before I start using them or deciding on a project. I'm not the world's most confident on colour so I tend to go for muted and natural shades. Having said that, I do have some brighter colours in my spinning stash: sometimes a hint of a brighter colour will lift a selection of natural shades. I look at what nature has provided and find a way to show it off to its best.

K: Have you any tips and hints to pass on to those wanting to learn to spin, or to take their spinning further?

S: No-one should tell you what to spin, or how to spin it: there is no set way of doing something. Do get advice from friends and fellow spinners, but then take that advice away and think about it yourself. Go with what you feel is right for you. If you're already spinning, then remember you don't have to ply everything. Singles work just as well for knitting shawls and cardigans. Again it's a case of going with the flow: feel what the fibre wants you to do with it.

Yarns Used

Knit Picks Cotlin DK
70% cotton, 30% linen
11 WPI
MC #8195 Cashew: 345, (370, 395, 420, 450) yards
CC1 #8193 Swan: 230, (250, 270, 300, 325) yards
#24460 Clementine 5 yards
Scrap amounts of an orange cotton can be substituted for the Clementine to duplicate stitch the beak on the 'OWL' sweater pocket and the claws on the other pocket.

Finished Measurements For Hat

16.5 (17.7)cm / 6.5 (7)in tall, 40.6 (43.2)cm / 16 (17)in around brim

Subtract approximately 65 (70) yards MC and 60 (65) yards CC1 if you are not making the hat.

Yarn Review

Lisa says: "This is a mainly cotton yarn, with 30% linen. Not my favourite type of yarn to work with as I like yarns with more memory. That being said, Cotlin is lovely to work with and is good on price. It's a matte yarn with no sheen, which works well on this particular design. It has a nice feel and isn't as heavy as some pure cottons, which is a plus."

Abbreviations

BO = Cast Off

Wrap, Turn = slip next stitch purlwise, bring yarn forward if knitting, (to back of work if purling,) move slipped stitch back to right needle, turn work.

Pattern notes

The pattern is written with the traditional 'wrong side' as the outside, or 'right side' of the finished sweater.

The cotton yarn stretches out but doesn't always stretch back, so the hat measures a little smaller to accommodate this, keeping it more snug on the wearer.

Working with stripes

It doesn't matter what colour ends up at the shoulder or top of the hat, but what does matter is the width of the stripe. If there is less than 2cm / 3/4 of an inch left to reach the shoulder (doesn't matter on the hat), it's advisable not change the colours - continue in the current stripe colour. A very thin stripe will not look right on the finished garment, a thicker stripe of the current colour will look best.

Colours can be carried up over alternate colour stripes to avoid lots of little tails to be worked in later, but only if your choice for RIGHT and WRONG sides have been decided at knit time. Be sure to carry the yarn on the side that has been designated as the wrong side.

As the cotton has a tendency to stretch out, a handy hint is to reinforce the button hole with sewing thread by stitching around the hole.

Work in HAT STRIPE PATTERN until hat measures 10.8 (12) cm/ 4.25 (4.75) in from beginning (measure with rolled rim "rolled" naturally) Do NOT end with Round 4, 8, 12 or 16 of the pattern. Work one more round if needed to prevent this.

Hat decrease

(Be sure to keep changing colours every 8 rounds and knitting the 1st, 5th, 9th and 13th rounds of each colour stripe as established)

Round 1: K2Tog, K1, P1, repeat between *'s across round. (63, 66) sts. Continue for 12 (16) rounds in HAT STRIPE PATTERN accommodating the decreases.

Next Round: K2Tog, P1 repeat between *'s across round. (42, 44) sts. Continue for 4 (4) rounds in HAT STRIPE PATTERN, accommodating the decreases.

Next Round: K2Tog across round (21, 22) sts.

Next Round: Knit

Next Round: K2tog across round (ending with k1 for smallest size) 11 sts Cut yarn leaving 15 inch tail. Thread tail onto darning needle and run through remaining stitches. Secure with a stitch and weave end into back of work.

Finishing

Weave in any loose ends in back of work. Trim.

Sew on button.

Sew on Pockets using MC, weave in any loose ends and Trim.

Hat only

Using Crochet Hook and tail at top of hat, Chain 10 stitches then join end of chain back into top of hat to form a pull loop. Work end into underside of hat and trim. Gently block sweater by covering with a thin, wet cotton cloth and use a hot iron to steam. Do not place iron directly on cloth or on sweater, use the iron to create steam with the wet cloth.

Persephone Cardigan

'A round striped yoke has been something I've sketched time and time again, the combination of the tweed yarn and the semi solid seemed too good to miss'

Special notes

This cardigan is designed to fall low on the shoulders and be worn casually over a round necked T shirt or shirt.

Pattern starts

Using MC and 5mm needles, CO 172 (200, 230) stitches and work 6 rows in garter stitch for bottom border.

Continue in st st with a 6 st garter st border at each end of every row until your garment measures 35 (40, 45) cm.

Divide as follows:

Work 40 (47, 54) sts as set in pattern.
CO 6 sts under arm. Work 80 (94, 108) sts in st st. CO 6 sts under arm. Work remaining 40 (47, 54) sts as set in pattern.

Yoke

Work in garter st from this point on.

Work in garter st in MC to decreased sts under armhole. CO 60 (70, 80) sts and continue working in garter st until you come to the other underarm. CO 60 (70, 80) sts and work to end of row.

Work 3 further rows in st st in MC

Change to a 2 row MC, 2 row CC stripe pattern for the remainder of the yoke.

Decreasing the yoke

You have 280 (328, 356) sts.

Pattern

Keeping stripe pattern correct decrease 18 (21, 23) sts evenly on next and every following 5th row 5 (5, 5)
times

Work 6 rows in garter stitch for the top of the cardigan, adding a K2tog, YO buttonhole in this section if you want to have a button fastening.

Finishing

Cast off, weave in ends and block.

Designer Biography

At just 18 years of age, Sophia is a self taught knitter and has been knitting for five years. She mainly enjoys knitting accessories and likes to learn new patterns.

Sofia Waterson Sofia Shawl

"I wanted a snuggly shawl to take the chill of Spring evening beach walking, with a crisp, nautical feel, and here it is!"

Pattern Starts

This is a simple project that's ideal for the beginner knitter and gives a really beautiful and versatile scarf that can be worn in a variety of ways.

Work in garter stitch (knit every row) throughout working 2 rows in MC and 2 rows in CC.

Do not cut the yarn inbetween the striped rows, just carry it up the side. Increase 1 stitch at the beginning of every other row so that you end up with one straight edge, and one sloping edge.

Repeat this until your work measures approx 84cm/33 inches from the cast on edge.

From now on you will be decreasing instead of increasing so that the slope goes back the other way.

Continue until you have 3 stitches left.

Cast off.

Using a contrasting colour, make 3

tassels and sew one to each point of the triangle.

Tassels

To make the tassels, wind some wool several times around two needles that are spaced evenly apart from each other. While taught, tie a length of the wool around the middle of the strands. Tie this off and slide off the needle s. Cut the ends of the wool so they're all separate strands, and fold the strands over so they're hanging.

Tie another length of yarn around the strands, approximately 2cm from the fold, fasten tightly and enjoy!

Added extras!

For a little something extra, why not add a crochet trim to the border edge?

OPTION 1

Round 1 - Using red yarn, pick up and knit 1 stitch in every stitch along the 3 sides of the shawl. Ensure that the yarn is not pulled too tightly otherwise the edging will bunch in.

Round 2 - Cast off all stitches.

OPTION 2

Crochet picot edging
Insert hook into first st. Ch 3. Dc into first ch and Dc in next st. Rep. to end.

Charts

These charts have been designed to fit neatly into the bottom of the shawl's triangle. Using stranded colourwork technique, you can add a splash of colour to your shawl.

Cast on 2 stitches and using K1f&b (Knit 1 front and back) add 2 stitches either end, to every other row.

In st st, knit until you have 28 stitches.

If you'd like to add button holes, increase the next row at either end with YO.

Knit to 30 stitches and then start decreasing, using SSK and K2TOG until you have 2 stitches left on your needle. Cast off.

Falmouth Knit Club

Sarah and Jo met at University and set up a knitting group by the sea

Falmouth Knit Club started in August 2008 when Sarah and I moved to Falmouth to study for MAs at University College Falmouth. We hadn't known each other before moving here, but by coincidence, arrived on the same day and became friends. Sarah had been knitting for some time, both as part of her creative practice and as a hobby. She'd been to a knitting group in Nottingham, where she lived before coming to Falmouth, and was keen to get one going here. To say I wasn't very enthusiastic is an understatement! All I could remember of knitting was trying to knit clothes for my dolls when I was little and ending up in huge knots or with knitting so tight I couldn't get the needle in to make the stitches. I said I'd come along to the first one for moral support, but I wouldn't do any knitting, now, three and a half years later, I'm an absolute knitting addict, thanks to Sarah's patient teaching and an obsession with tea cosies!

Knit Club started at a lovely little arts cafe in the centre of Falmouth, called Babahogs. It was a great space, with comfy sofas, lots of artwork on the walls and great coffee and cake. It didn't take long for curious people to start noticing the growing numbers of us sitting knitting away and we were always happy to show people how to get started or give advice on more complicated projects. Unfortunately, after just over a year, Babahogs closed down and now we meet every Wednesday, 7-10pm in the HAND Bar at the top of the old High Street. It's really cosy and Pete, who runs it, is very kind to put up with all of our demands! There's a great creative feel about the place.

Knit Club is for people of all abilities and ages. We're not snobbish about the kind of wool you use or how long it takes you to finish things, it's as much about getting together and having a chat and a laugh as it is about what we do. Often, people sew or draw or just sit and listen, but we're always happy to help people learn to knit if they'd like to.

Sometimes, there's only a handful of us and other times there can be about 15. We keep in touch with people via email and our blog and we celebrate our birthday every year with even more cake than usual and the now infamous Knit Club awards, given for achievements such as, Services to the Understanding of Crochet, Most Frogged, Fanciest Wool and Perseverance on a Single Knitting Project. We've been on a few trips around Cornwall and to events in Exeter and we've got as far as talking about maybe doing some yarnstorming, but mostly, we just love to sit and knit!
